Luke selected to head Minden Red Cross Society

Robert Luke has been elected president of the Minden Red Cross Society. He, and other members of his executive and board of directors, were chosen Saturday evening at the association's annual meeting. The gathering was held at Hart Lodge.

Luke succeeds Jim Burton who had served as president for two years. The new president is also head of the Minden Ambulance Service.

In addition to the selection of the new officers for the coming year and the receiving of annual reports from various committee heads, two members of the local society were honoured for their many years of dedicated service to the association.

Grace Simmons, who has been active with the Minden Red Cross since 1953 was presented with a certificate of merit for outstanding voluntary service to the society.

Helen Johnson received a similar citation. She has been involved with the society since 1953 as well and has served as president of the Minden branch for a number of years.

The certificates were presented by Dr. Ron Sears of Lindsay, the chairman of section four of the Red Cross organization in Ontario, which includes Minden. He praised the two volunteers for their efforts and noted, while the Red Cross is active in 125 countries around the world, it is volunteers at the local level who ensure the continued operation of the organization.

Dr. Sears will be stepping down as chairman of the region, which includes 12 branches, and the past president of the Minden society, Jim Burton will be taking over that position.

The guest speaker for the evening was Victoria-Haliburton MP Bill Scott who spoke to the audience on heat pumps.

The members of the new executive include: Robert Luke, president; Jim Burton, past president; Aileen Blears, vice president; Eleanor Hall, secretary; and Stanley Blears, treasurer. Directors include: Audrey Currie, Grace Simmons, Earl Hewitt, David McKinley, Dr. Jeffrey Lodenquai, Allan Stott, Paul Heffer, Helen Burton, Helen Johnson and Estella Burch.

Members of the coming year include: Donald Berry, Bea Berry, Frank Waters, Grace Coburn, Phyllis Campbell, Sigrid Laine, Donna Monk, Glynn Lewis, Jerry Rome, Ollie Rome, Jean Anderson, Harry Davis, Shirley Mitchell, Janet Smith, Dennis Smith, Len Lonsberry, Sonya Holliday-Rhodes, Dr. Antony Holliday-Rhodes, Alberta Maitland, Robert Krick, Marion Lodenquai and Bob Herlihey.

Parking area under study

Township council will study the possibility of renting a portion of property on Peck Street for a municipal parking lot. The matter was considered at the April 9 meeting and will be discussed again after the councillors have had an opportunity to examine the location.

The land is located directly behind the Northland Surplus store and is owned by former reeve, Charles Brandon.

In responding to an informal inquiry about the possibility of using the property for a municipally operated parking lot, Mr. Brandon commented in a letter that he would be willing to allow the township to use the area provided the council carried out at least $500 worth of improvements on the property each year. The letter also stipulated that the agreement between the parties could be terminated with 30 days notice being given, except during the summer months when any termination would have to wait until September 15.

Brandon also requested that if the council planned to make any use of the property, other than for parking, that a new agreement would have to be drawn up.

The matter will be discussed at the next meeting of the council.

Sunday opening debate delayed until April 23

Township council has delayed for two weeks the discussion of a topic described by the reeve as, "a touchy issue."

The question of restricting Sunday opening of stores in the municipality was touched upon briefly when the council met April 9. It was noted that several merchants in the community have requested that regulations be enacted to restrict the opening of stores on Sunday.

At the moment, the meeting was told, there are no restrictions on when stores can open. One possible control that was suggested was to limit the stores that can stay open by their floor area. The suggested limit was 1500 square feet. It was also suggested that a limit of three employees would help to define the stores which would qualify for Sunday opening.

Councillor Lyle McKnight noted that in some communities where the floor area restriction is used to control Sunday openings, merchants have roped-off certain sections of a store thereby reducing the size of the floor area in use. However, he pointed out that customers often slip under the ropes to retrieve products in the closed-off areas.

Municipal by-law enforcement officer Dick Schell commented that this practice can be eliminated by indicating in any restrictions that the total floor area of a store would be the basis for deciding if a business can remain open.

Schell also suggested that restrictions based on the types of products offered for sale might be considered by the council.

Councillor Stuart Brandon predicted the discussion of the question would be "heated".

The councillors agreed to postpone the discussion of the proposal until the next meeting (April 23). The reason for the delay was that Councillor Len Lonsberry was not in attendance.

Youths charged in two incidents

The Haliburton Curling Club was broken into and $250 of liquor was taken in the early morning hours of April 10.

John Philip Smith, 18, Brett Floyd Hie, 18, Robert Smith, 20, Peter Austin, 16, and a fifteen year old male juvenile, all of Haliburton have been charged with break, enter and theft.

They will appear in court on May 13, in Minden.

Constable Al Bibby investigated the theft.

Stolen truck recovered

Three members of the same group charged with the break-in at the Haliburton Curling Club on April 10 were also charged with break, enter and theft at Curry Motors in Haliburton on March 25.

Brett Floyd Hie, Peter Austin, and a 15 year old male juvenile were charged with stealing a truck from the automobile company and with possession of stolen property. The vehicle was recovered near Oshawa.

Constable Mike Maher investigated the incident.

Site set for curling rink

Members of the Minden Curling Club and township council have come to a consensus on the location of the new curling club and recreation complex.

Representatives of the club, Godfrey Saunders and Jim Garbutt, appeared before the council April 9 to present their case.

In a letter addressed to the council the chairman of the building committee, Saunders, stated, "Various locations were examined by the committee, including attaching the new structure to the present arena, both at the front and the side."

Saunders told the councillors that the committee decided to locate the building in an area west of the present community hall. The club would occupy a portion of the present upper level parking area with the main entrance facing toward the road.

The building would be located approximately 80 feet from the front of the present community centre.

The site selection would mean that a section of the new fence, installed last year around the fair grounds, would have to be moved, including one of the gates.

The councillors and members of the curling club committee adjourned to the site of the building to discuss the location further Wednesday afternoon. After returning to the council chambers the councillors passed a resolution endorsing the suggested location.

Previously, it had been suggested that the new facility could be attached to the rear of the arena to take advantage of the ice plant. Other plans called for the placement of the structure south of the present curling facility or attached to the front of the community centre.

The building committee expects to raise the funds for the structure through donations and Wintario grants as well as by other means.

BIA meeting planned for core merchants

Merchants in the core area of Minden should be receiving an invitation to a meeting soon.

The meeting is part of a program to explain the operation of a Business Improvement Area (BIA) and to provide first hand information on how the plan has been implemented in other communities.

The plans for the meeting, which may include a dinner, were tentatively drafted April 9 at the regular meeting of the Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council. Tony Sywak of the Ministry of Housing was on hand to explain the various facets of the program and comment on a number of changes in the regulations concerning BIAs.

According to the government representative a definite commitment from the business community is needed before a BIA should be attempted.

Councillor Stuart Brandon pointed out that a recent public meeting indicated that a large number of the merchants in the downtown area of the community were interested in learning more about the program.

Sywak told the councillors that several facets of the program may be changing in the near future. He said consideration is being given to allowing a business within a BIA to be excluded from the program. He pointed out that in some cases a factory, for example, may have little to gain from BIA, and could be exempted from participation.

He also commented that provisions are being considered whereby minimum and maximum contribution levels could be set for businesses within a BIA. Under the present system each merchant within an area is obligated to contribute to a BIA on a percentage basis based on the amount of business tax he pays. Sywak noted that this could place a particularly heavy burden on some merchants and discourage their participation. "By placing a maximum level on the contribution any one business has to make, the cost of improvements is shared more equitably," he

Dropping in on Stanhope

Two representatives from the Toronto Parachute Club are to meet with Stan Moore, the chairman of the Stanhope Airport Committee in two weeks, to discuss the possibility of "dropping-in" on Stanhope, for the summer months.

Moore presented the topic to the Stanhope Council on April 9.

The members of the council felt the activity could be a boost to the tourist traffic in the area.

The reason the Toronto Club is interested in the Stanhope airport over other sites, Moore says, is that "The noise will not be a problem since our heavy flying time will begin late in the morning and finish early in the evening, therefore it won't disturb any holiday sleepers."

Moore thanked the council for their co-operation and said "I will meet with the parachute club representatives within two weeks time."

is for the calling of tenders for construction. The committee has yet to hear officially from Wintario that their application for assistance has been accepted, but it is expected in the next few weeks. According to the application submitted to Wintario officials, the total cost of the building has been estimated at $300,000.

parachutists want the challenge of keeping out of the water and trees," which are adjacent to the facility.

Deputy-reeve Elgin Stouffer pointed out, "if the parachute club use the Stanhope airport facilities it would mean extra air traffic which leads to a strong possibility of excessive noise."

Moore assured the council commented. He also pointed out that the minimum level would ensure that all merchants in an area are contributing a reasonable amount to the program.

The housing representative said that in order to establish a BIA, an official plan for the municipality is required. He noted that there was not one in Minden and said he would check with ministry officials to determine if the Haliburton County Planning Strategy qualified under the terms of the legislation.

If the ministry does not accept the planning strategy the future of the Minden BIA could be in jeopardy.

Sywak indicated that funding might be available to help cover the cost of a main street study. The study would determine what improvements are necessary. The ministry is also looking at the possibility of allowing the BIA to undertake programs which extend past the one year planning period.

The councillors were generally pleased with the information supplied by Sywak although reservations were expressed over the provisions which would allow some merchants to opt out of the BIA program. It was felt that some apathetic merchants might take advantage of the option and not contribute while they gain the advantages. Sywak stressed that the changes were merely suggestions at this point and were under consideration by ministry officials.

The ministry representative agreed to return to Minden in the near future to provide a slide presentation on BIAs. He also suggested that a representative of the Lindsay business community, where the BIA program has been in operation, should also be invited to attend to explain the problems that business community experienced and to answer questions for the merchants.

The council agreed to hold the meeting before the busy summer season arrives. Merchants in the core area should be notified about the meeting in the near future.

The gallery at the Wednesday meeting of the Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council was unusually full as students from grades four and five at Archie Stouffer School attended to learn more about their municipal government. The youngsters sat in on about an hour of debate. Councillors Stu Brandon, left, Lyle McKnight and Douglas Pritchard, right, can be seen in the foreground.

Library is back to square one

It appears to be "back to square one" for the Minden Library and Cultural Centre.

Township council, meeting April 9, has instructed the municipal by-law enforcement officer Dick Schell to obtain prices from local contractors for a 1500 square foot building to be erected on Bobcaygeon Road North. The site, adjacent to the senior citizens apartment units, was rejected earlier this year when soil tests indicated the ground was not stable enough.

A sign, now fallen with the face in the mud, had been standing at the location for the past year, announcing the site as that of the new library.

The soil tests on which the original rejection had been based, were taken by the Ministry of Housing when they were determining the best location of the apartment complex. The tests indicated that the ground was not stable enough to support a structure, if pilings were used to support it.

However, further investigation by the council has indicated that it may be possible to "float" the proposed building on a concrete pad. The present liquor store in the village is built in such a manner. It has been suggested that a pad, shaped like an inverted saucer, may be suitable to hold the new building.

A search for a site for the new library has stymied the construction of the facility. After the Bobcaygeon Road location was rejected, committee members considered sites beside the present municipal office, purchasing an old home on North Water Street and several other options.

At a recent joint meeting of the council and library-cultural centre planning committee the latest option, the home on the Gull River, was rejected and it appeared that the construction of the facility had gone into limbo. However, this latest move by the council appears to be a positive step toward the construction of the facility.

The author has written to the township council suggesting that such a project be undertaken. Considered at the April 9 meeting, the proposal received the

Fee increase

The fees charged by the Kawartha-Haliburton-Pine Ridge Health Unit for septic tank and sanitary disposal installation inspections has increased. The boost in rates was announced in a letter read at the April 9 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council.

Inspections of holding tanks, septic tank, aerobic systems and hauled sewage systems has increased to $45. The previous fee was $35.

A charge of $95 will now be levied for inspection of commercial systems where the flow exceeds 45 litres per day.

The new fee structure comes into effect January 4, 1980.

approval of the council.

According to the plan proposed by the author, the municipality will apply to the Ontario government for the necessary grants to cover the preparation of the history. This funding will be turned over to the author who will then spend up to two years writing and researching the book. Once completed the book will become the property of the township.

According to the author, a similar scheme was used in the preparation of a history of Bancroft. "The book has more than paid for itself," she commented in the letter.

Nila Reynolds is the author of a number of books concerning the Highlands. She wrote "In Quest of Yesterday" a history of Haliburton County, "Dream of Excellence" a history of the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts and a number of other works.

In considering the project, the Stanhope council has indicated that it would like the Township of Sherborne, to the north, to be included in the work.

While the project has received the initial approval from the Stanhope council, details of the financial commitment has been completed. Clerk-treasurer Gerald Bain said, "those details will have to be discussed with the author before the final go ahead is given."

Editorial

The two year term

Should municipally elected representatives serve for a three year term?

The question is not a new one. It has been discussed and debated in a number of forums, the latest being the Association of Municipal Clerks and Treasurers of Ontario. A report of the AMTC, which recommended the three year terms, was read, for information purposes, at the April 9 meeting of the Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council. It suggested, among other election reforms, that the members of council, boards of education and other municipally elected officials serve for three year terms instead of the present two years.

We think the suggestion should be approached with caution.

It wasn't that long ago that the municipal term of office in Ontario was extended from one to two years. The change made sense at that time because of the escalating costs of holding elections and the increasingly complex nature of municipal affairs. (As any freshman councillor or trustee will admit, most of the first year is a learning process.)

The same arguments could be applied to the suggestion that the term be stretched another year. Elections do cost money, more each time they are held. The business of running a municipality or school board is certainly not growing any simpler.

On the other hand, municipal government is the closest of the three layers to the people. Decisions made by local councils or boards of education, have an immediate and obvious impact on the people and community they serve. Federal and provincial statutes, by comparison, deal with a broad spectrum of laws and regulations, many of which do not have any direct impact on the majority of individuals.

However, since decisions taken at the municipal level can have an immediate effect on the members of the community, the councils which are entrusted to make those decisions should be keenly aware of the wishes of the people they represent. Placing three year intervals between elections removes that immediacy which make councils responsive to the desires of the electorate.

We do not suggest that an elected official should be swayed by every passing fad or expediency of the moment. His responsibility is to act in the best interests of the community as a whole. At the same time, however, the elected official should not feel so secure in his post that he can, for the first half of his term, ignore the feelings of those who elected him.

There are benefits for both the elected and the electors in a two year term of office. The elected representative is aware that he must answer for his actions in the not too distant future, perhaps before time has dulled the memory of the voters. The electors know as well, that they have a regular and effective channel through which to express their displeasure or satisfaction with the job being done.

Ontario has struck the right balance by having a two year term for municipal officials. Stretching it to three years would be a serious mistake.

Mainstream Canada

Bucking Bell Canada

By W. Roger Worth

The executives at Bell Canada have more nerve than Evel Knievel, the prominent showman who wanted to leap across the vaunted Grand Canyon.

For years, Bell has been grossly overcharging (to the rip-off point) small and medium-sized businesses in Quebec and Ontario that are forced to have a telephone service to survive.

This is particularly true when one considers that the lowest rate for the smallest business in the two provinces is an unheard of 300% more than similar residential rates.

Roger Worth is Director, Public Affairs, Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

Now Ma Bell has completely disowned customers operating independent businesses, not even considering the fact that these smaller enterprises create a majority of the country's new jobs.

In its latest proposal to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission, Bell wants to shove through a 23% rate increase for householders. But for Canada's small and medium-sized businesses, the company believes rates should go up a whopping 35%.

Even now, small entrepreneurs in Montreal and Toronto are being charged $27.35 per month for a service that is many times used less than the residential telephone.

The present rate for residential service: $8.55 per month.

To put things in perspective, the differential between the business and residential rates in the U.S. is much, much less, depending on the area, and in Britain the variance is only 18%, compared to the 300% plus differential in the Ontario-Quebec region.

Why is Bell Canada out to clobber small business?

The answer, it seems, is that the company is simply continuing a process that started many years ago on the assumption that smaller businesses need telephones and were badly organized, so reaction against such discriminatory pricing policies would be minimal.

Such is not the case anymore. The 55,000-member Canadian Federation of Independent Business is already battling against the 35% price increase in Ontario and Quebec and will tackle phone companies in other provinces if they attempt to duplicate the process.

Bell Canada already has the highest rates in the country. Now the company wants more, and much of it from the sweat of people operating small and medium-sized enterprises.

What this country needs is more competitive, independent businesses. Canada does not need telephone monopolies that charge what the market will bear, particularly when one considers the present business rate in Quebec City is $23.15 per month, vs only $17.95 in Edmonton. Something's amiss.

construction of energy-efficient housing with passive solar heating. As you probably know, passive solar heating collects thermal energy through windows without using fans, pumps, or other mechanical collection devices. Design proposals will be solicited from registered builders and a steering committee will choose 10 to 15 designs for further development. Subsequently, some or even all of the designs will be constructed, with builders assuming basic costs and the province paying the additional costs of passive solar heating.

Health clinics

A new Ontario government patient treatment program is proving to be controversial. Under the scheme, a clinic of seven doctors in St. Marys - a town of 4,700 people - was paid $712,788 by the Ontario Health Insurance Plan in 1978. There are some 28 other such clinics around the province. These Health Service Organizations - HSOs

- are clinics where doctors are paid an annual flat fee for patients on their rosters, even though some patients may not visit the clinics for years. The St. Marys' clinic is actually an unofficial HSO and has been operating under the system since 1971. It will not officially become an HSO until July.

Larger signs in rural areas O.K.

Businesses in the rural areas of the municipality will be allowed to erect signs up to 12 feet square, according to an agreement reached at the April 9 meeting of Anson, Hinton and Minden Township council.

The sign regulations were changed after a request was heard at the last council meeting for a revision. The new regulations will apply to the rural areas only and signs within the village and other built up areas will still have to be restricted to two square feet. Under the present rules the sign must also be attached to the front of the dwelling.

The request, heard at the March 26 meeting, noted that many rural businesses, which are located in homes, are set quite a distance back from the roadway. Signs of only two square feet and attached to the house are often not visible from the roadway in such cases.

It was suggested that the location of the sign advising of a rural business be governed by the restrictions of the Ministry of Transportation and Communications with regard to the distance a sign must be from the roadway.

"We can't very tell a person it is all right to operate a business in a rural area and not allow him to erect a sign that will identify that business," Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt commented.

The council agreed that all applications to erect such signs will require approval from the municipality.

Once again, the degree of hazard associated with a common pesticide has been called into question. This time the suspect is 2,4,5-T, a herbicide used for weed and brush control, and the efforts of scientists and politicians to find a solution acceptable to everyone are raising a storm of controversy.

As our understanding of ecological and health effects becomes increasingly more sophisticated, the list of dangerous chemicals grows ever longer. We accepted long ago that a toxic chemical doesn't have to kill wildlife or people directly in order to have dangerous effects - the chemical may cause birth defects, for example. But a study published last year by two pesticide researchers, K.L. Bildstein and D.J. Forsyth, suggested that these sublethal effects can be much more subtle as well.

These researchers looked at the influence of dieldrin, a pesticide, on the relationship between predators and their prey. When dieldrin was fed to white-footed mice at levels that might be encountered in treated fields, the mice showed no external signs of pesticide poisoning. When a hawk was flown over the mice, at first their reaction appeared normal - they watched the hawk closely and prepared to run.

But previous studies have shown that the best strategy for a mouse in this predicament is to freeze, an action taken normally by almost all mice. The dieldrin-fed mice without exception did the opposite - they ran and became vulnerable to attack. The researchers linked this failure to freeze to a general pattern of increased activity and irritability, which makes pesticide - fed mice easy targets for their predators.

If wild mice are easier prey after feeding on pesticide-treated fields, the accumulation of that chemical in the food chain would be increased, since hawks and other predators will catch more contaminated mice than normal ones. In fact, a British study of peregrine falcons suggests that such a mechanism may account for high levels of dieldrin found in these birds of prey.

Could man-made chemicals be influencing behaviour on a broader scale? Some parents of hyper-active children think so, but in the world of nature, our knowledge is very limited indeed. But the evidence to date suggests one more reason to be very, very cautious in how we use pesticides and other poisons.

MNR announces moose season dates.....

The 1980 moose seasons will open generally later and close much sooner than in 1979, Natural Resources Minister James Auld announced recently.

Moose hunting season south of the French and Mattawa rivers will be separate from the deer season this year and open on October 20.

In much of the far north (Albany River area), where access is limited and hunting relatively moderate, seasons will open September 27 for residents and between September 27 and October 4 for non-residents. Seasons close in those areas on October 31 and November 15 for non-residents and residents respectively.

The seasons in the near north (Red Lake - Lac Seul area) will be from October 8 to November 15 for residents and from October 11 to October 31 for non-residents.

The season in northwestern and north central Ontario will be from October 14 to November 15 for residents and from October 18 to October 31 for non-residents.

The eastern part of the Territorial District of Rainy River, where only residents may hunt, will generally open on October 18 and close on November 15.

In the northeast, the area between White River and Kapuskasing will have an October 18 to November 15 resident season and an Elliot lake will be open from September 15 to September 30 for residents and non-residents. The area south of Timmins and between Kapuskasing and Hearst will have an archery season from September 20 to October 10 for residents and non-residents.

The newly elected President of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters (OFAH) Doug Ogston, believes the government of Ontario is taking the easiest, but not the best, way out with its new moose hunting regulations. "The government is being unfairly over-restrictive with hunters, but still refuses to implement strict regulations limiting the size of clearcuts used by the timber companies. We've worked with the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) for over five years trying to get a comprehensive moose management program in this province. This new government plan ignores most of the meaningful recommendations we put forward."

The OFAH wants a 300 acre size limit placed on clearcuts and cites cuts covering areas further than the eye can see. "These areas desecrated by timber operators take all the moose's habitat. They are ruined for virtually all wildlife, naturalists, and hunters. To make matters worse, hunters naturally avoid such areas, move, and create a potential over-harvest in other areas," states Ogston. "Meaningful clearcutting regulations are now lacking so the government is being ridiculously tough on hunters. They are over-compensating because they aren't being tough enough with timber operators."

The OFAH had recommended some hunter restrictions designed to reduce the annual harvest without reducing the recreational opportunities. Among them is a request for an "optional party licence". If this proposal were implemented, one to four or five hunters could share a higher priced moose licence allowing them to take one moose between them. The OFAH reasoning suggests that most camps of seven or eight hunters would only buy two group licences, thereby substantially reducing the potential harvest.

The new MNR regulations requiring two hunters per licence would allow the same camp to take three or four moose. Camps with an odd number of hunters must either leave one hunter at home, or add another member to their camp.

The sportsmen's Federation, Ontario's largest provincial conservation organization, feels another of the government's new regulations takes away days of outdoor recreation from many hunters. "Under our proposals, all hunters in a camp could hunt until such time as they were fortunate enough to get the moose they were licensed for. With the Ministry regulations, if a moose is not shot the first morning, two hunters are done for the week. They can either sit around and watch their friends enjoy themselves, or go home. The new regulations clearly encourage people to break the law," states OFAH Executive Vice President, Rick Morgan. Last fall, the OFAH assisted the MNR in hosting a series of public open houses to get the feelings of the general public. An overwhelming majority of people in attendance favoured restrictions on non-resident hunters before resident restrictions. The Federation feels the non-resident season should not open until at least a week after the residents' opening. In most areas of the north, the 1980 openings are the same or within three days of one another. Most seasons will be shorter for both residents and non-residents, starting later and closing as much as a month earlier. A Federation recommendation for a fixed Monday opening has been ignored. As Ogston points out, "The Ministry told us for years that a Saturday opening was bad for the moose. Now they've gone back to one".

The Federation is also concerned that the Ministry of Natural Resources has not allowed them to see the tabulated responses from the public meetings, despite their cooperation. "It makes us wonder if response from the public has been ignored," says Ogston.

Sportsmen across Ontario have been calling MNR offices trying to determine the dates of this year's hunting seasons. Many, forced to select their vacation period by their employers, assumed the dates would be the same as last year and now may be unable to hunt. Most felt seasons should be announced no later than the Federation's annual meeting in February.

The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters is a 52 year old conservation group with headquarters in Peterborough, Ontario.

Moose hunting season south of the French and Mattawa rivers will be separate from the deer season....

October 18 to October 31 non-resident season.

The remainder of the northeast, the area from Chapleau - Kapuskasing - Cochrane south to the north channel of Lake Huron and east to the Quebec border, will have an October 18 to October 31 season for residents and non-residents, with a residents-only season in the unit north of North Bay.

The special archery hunting seasons will again be held this year. The area northeast of (longbow, crossbow and muzzle-loading firearms) season on the Aulneau Peninsula in Lake of the woods - will be held from October 11 through November 15 for residents and October 11 through 31 for non-residents.

For further or more detailed information, moose hunters should review the hunting summary to be published later this year, or contact their local district offices of the Ministry of Natural Resources.

If you can provide new jobs for Ontario's youth, Ontario will help pay their salaries.

If you operate a business in Ontario and create new jobs between May 5 and October 26, 1980, you may apply to the Ontario Youth Employment Program for a grant of $1.25 an hour (up to a maximum of $50.00 a week) towards the wages of each eligible youth you hire for those jobs.

Here's how OYEP can help.

OYEP was designed both for you and young people who want to work. It enables you to hire young people between the ages of 15 and 24 to do extra work for you while we help to pay their salaries.

The maximum grant allows you up to 6,000 man hours of help at each location where application for employment has been made. For example, you could hire 10 young people for 15 weeks each, or 15 young people for 10 weeks each. You must hire each young person for an average of 25 hours of supervised employment per week for at least six weeks.

Eligible employers.

You may be an eligible employer if you have been actively engaged in business in Ontario for at least one year prior to May 5, 1980. This is a requirement for each location where you would like to hire.

Eligible employees.

The young people you would like to hire must be between the ages of 15 and 24. They must reside and be eligible to work in Ontario. They must not be related to the employer as defined in the Ontario Youth Employment Act.

All jobs must be new.

To be eligible for funding, a position created must be in addition to regular and seasonal employment normally provided during the 25 week program period. This may mean special projects in the office, general repairs, research and so on.

Apply early.

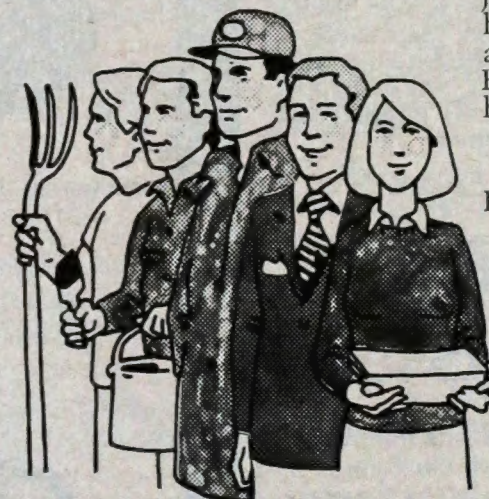

Grant funds are limited.

Deadline date for applications is July 2, 1980, or earlier if all funds have been allocated. Submit your application as soon as possible. Before you hire, make sure you have written approval.

Legion members honoured for years of service

Dedicated members of the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 129, Haliburton were honoured by their fellow members Saturday at a special awards banquet.

The evening drew a near capacity crowd to the hall to witness the presentation of year pins ranging from 10 to 35 years service and membership in the organization.

The guests were treated to two speakers Saturday evening. Merrill Dunn spoke on national unity and its importance for Canada. "Some of us might have said at one time or another that we don't care if Quebec separates from Canada. The thought that we didn't need them might have crossed our minds. This is nonsense,"

Dunn told the 200 members and guests. "We need them the same way that they need us. Unity in this country is most important."

Phyllis Montemiglio Zone Commander for the Ladies Auxiliary to the Royal Canadian Legion was the second guest speaker of the evening.

The evening concluded with the presentation of awards to the members who had served the Legion. Medals were presented to those who had served on the executive of the branch for five consecutive years. Recipients included: L. Whittaker, Charles Yateman, Mel Robertson, L. Coneybeare, R. Anderson, M. Scheffee, F. Roberts, A.S. Cooper, R. Bannon, R. Bates, E. Iles, D. Johnstone and Cliffe Dawson.

Ten year pins were presented to: Sylvia Sisson, Joan Irish, Kathleen Anderson, Ron Perrin, Clare Roberts, Chas Yateman, Chas Wise, Stan Ashman, David Bishop, Micheal Brod-hagen, Frank Dunsford, Carl Holmstrom, Moss McCracken, Howard Roberts.

Fifteen year pins were presented to: Eileen Morrison, Roy Boughner, Roy Bates.

Twenty year pins were presented to: Garnet Ash, Clayton Barnum.

Twenty-five year pins were presented to: Duncan MacLean, Arnold Pennycook, Garnet Sedgewick, Harry Good.

Two individuals received 30 year pins. They were Jack Bannon and Oscar Stewart.

Receiving 35 year pins were: Jack Barry, Max Sisson, Keith Sisson, Bernard Sisson, Geo. Hunter, Russell Woodcock, Ken Teasdale, Hugh Tester, Doug Pritchard, Cecil Yearwood, Wm. Fiske, Bruce McKay, Lloyd Baker, Lloyd Whitaker, Larry Barjarow, Mel James, Harold Boughner, Ed Whiteway, Frank Barnum, Mark Schell, Ray Cooper, Roy Howe, Bill Niemi, Murray McGuire, Chas Rumbow, Allin Cooper and Earl Shipley.

1975 values must be used

Since at least two municipalities in the county have realigned their assessment rolls based on 1975 housing values, all other townships in Haliburton will have to follow suit.

That was the message delivered to the Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council, April 9 by Ministry of Revenue representative Paul Lindquist. He told the councillors that the decision had been made in Toronto by the Minister of Revenue. He stated that the staff at the Regional Assessment office in Lindsay were "stunned" when the decision was made.

Several townships, including Minden and Lutterworth have objected to the reassessment plan introduced by the ministry. It was to have been based on 1978 market values. However, when the plan was announced with 1975 values, the townships withdrew their support.

Lindquist pointed out,

"Certainly the 1978 values are better than 1975, but 1975 is better than what we are using now." Assessment in the community is now based on 1971 market values.

The ministry representative also noted that changes in the base year will not influence the amount of tax being received by the municipality. He said using more up to date figures will simply result in a more equitable allotment of taxes based on the most recent market values.

Councillor Stuart Brandon stated that the council wanted to have its assessment based on figures that reflect the present market value of property.

Lindquist said that updating the figures may result in some shifts in tax burdens within various categories.

Brandon asked what would happen if the municipality insisted on having the assessment based on present market value. Lindquist responded that the Minister of Revenue would have to rule on that question. He indicated that the move would require at least two years to complete.

"We seem to be getting farther away from equalized assessment in this county," Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt commented.

Lindquist suggested that the only route open to the municipality would be to contact the minister and explain their concerns.

Wood show draws full house for opening night

A full house greeted the opening of the woodcraft show Friday evening at the Rail's End Gallery in Haliburton. The Show, which will run until April 26, includes the work of a number of local artisans.

The displays featured examples of delicate carving, joinery and finishing techniques. All of those in attendance on the opening night seemed genuinely impressed with the craftsmanship on display.

An interesting exhibition and demonstration of wooden toys was offered at the beginning of the evening. Paul Simpson of Stouffville entertained the children and adults with interesting insights into the history of wooden toys. Simpson regards himself as a toy historian as well as a toy maker. He researches the origins of the toys he makes, tracing them back to their creation.

He told the audience Friday that several countries or regions often claim the idea for a toy. "It may be a matter of circumstance, where two people simultaneously develop an idea," he commented, "or it could result from an idea being 'stolen' by traders and developed in another area."

Among his collection of toys are Chinese puzzles, mazes, toys that entertain and provide exercise for the user and toys just for the fun of it.

One of the particular favourites among the audience Friday was a dancing man or horse. These carved wooden figures have multi-jointed legs and arms. A dowl, stuck in their backs, hold these lithe dolls just above a flexible wooden platform. As the platform is struck, usually in time to music, the legs and arms of the figures jump around providing an amusing visual scene and accentuating the tempo of the music.

Simpson had also visited a number of elementary schools during the day to demonstrate his toys and talk about their origins.

Derek Smith of Haliburton, one of the local craftsmen who has work on display in the gallery, then showed a series of slides on work being done by young designers in the province. The work was chosen by the Ontario Crafts Council and featured sculpture, carving and furniture.

While the inside of the Rail's End Gallery is filled with examples of fine craftsmanship, often demanding attention to minute detail, this Friday a demonstration of different sorts of wood crafting will take place.

Gary Kenney, of Blairhampton Alternative will be on hand at the gallery Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. giving examples of the sort of skill and ability which is a part of modern log house building. Kenney plans to include demonstrations on joint making, squaring timber, mortice and tenon and other skills used in the construction of a log home. Anyone wishing to talk with Kenney or watch his demonstration is invited to attend.

(Working with a chain saw is not the most appropriate activity for inside an art gallery so Kenney's demonstration will take place only if the weather permits.)

A framed wood carving draws admiring glances from two members of the opening night crowd at the gallery.

Paul Simpson, wooden toy historian and maker enthralls students at Archie Stouffer School with the Jacob's ladder toy. Paul makes all of his own toys and traces their history. He presented a number of performances at area schools and was featured during the opening night of the wood show at the Rail's End Gallery.

Cars collide at Haliburton intersection

An accident occurred at the intersection of Cedar Avenue in Haliburton and Highway 121 April 9. Robert Pincombe, 58, of Haliburton was turning left onto York Street and collided with an oncoming car.

John Brohm, 54, was travelling west on Highway 121 when his 1970 car collided with the Pincombe vehicle.

The Brohm car sustained $500 damage.

Pincombe's car sustained $800 from the accident.

No injuries were reported.

The investigating officer of the accident was Constable Bob Wood.

$3,000 damage

Diane M. Varner was a long way from her home in Paradise Valley, Arizona when fate awarded her an unfortunate turn through a rail fence on April 11.

Varner was westbound on McCrackens Road in Minden township when her 1979 four wheel drive left the road and smashed into a rail fence.

$3,000 damage to the vehicle resulted from the incident, however Varner was fortunate to walk away without injury.

Constable Al Barnes investigated the mishap.

Break, enter charge

A charge of break and enter with intent to steal has been laid against a Haliburton man. Terry Curtis Grant, 17, was charged after an apartment belonging to Gunter Franke was entered April 13.

The open door was noticed by a passer-by and the situation was reported to the police. Grant was discovered in the apartment.

Furniture in the unit had been overturned, but no damage was reported.

Constable Al Bibby of Minden OPP investigated the mishap.

70 species

More than 70 species of mammals live in or near Canada's forests. These include several members of the deer family, from the massive moose to the graceful white-tailed deer. The black bear is found in both eastern and western Canada, while the larger grizzly bear inhabits the northwestern forest lands. The smallest mammal in the forests is the tiny shrew, smaller than a man's thumb and part of our environment.

While the last minute scramble is on to get tomato plants and other vegetables started in peat pots, a few weeks still remain before one can actually get his hands in the soil. Time to think, to think about flowers.

Wayne Brown, an extension horticulturalist with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food provides some tips below on how to grow roses without all the hassles.

His contribution is followed by a review of the new Coleus varieties, and why the Wizard in particular, might be well worth your consideration. John Hughes, also with the Ministry of Agriculture and Food, is the author.

Roses

If you love roses, but don't have the time or patience to grow hybrid tea roses, shrub roses may be the answer.

Although shrub roses are exceedingly attractive, these old-fashioned roses are rarely seen in our modern gardens. This loosely knit group of plants flower later than most other woody shrubs, and the blooms usually last longer. The growth habit of these plants is not as refined as the modern hybrid teas, and they are not as ever-blooming as the floribundas.

Shrub roses are versatile. The various species are effective especially in mass plantings. Many can be used as hedge plants, in shrub borders or foundation plantings, and as specimen plants. Some can even tolerate light shade. Many are valuable garden ornaments because of their hardiness. Fine year-round color can be achieved easily by proper selection for decorative foliage, wood, bloom, and fruit.

Under the classification of shrub roses are the species roses, or the old fashioned types - moss rose (R. moschata) and damask (R. damascena). The various members of these two groups bear intensely fragrant blooms in white, shades of pink, red, and crimson.

Moss roses are characterized by a distinctly mossy growth on the outer side of the calyx of the opening buds. Severe pruning is often required for a good bloom. In order to achieve a succession of blooms, half of the canes may be pruned in October, and half the following May. Cut the shoots back to four or five buds.

The damask rose was brought to Europe by the Crusaders returning from the Holy Land. Modern hybrids have been developed to give a floral effect that equals the bedding types. The hybrids are vigorous, and thrive in almost any type of soil.

One of the most cold-resistant roses available is the alai rose (R. altaica). It is a very free-flowering, compact rose, with small, neat foliage, large creamy-white blooms, and black fruit that hangs on the plant all winter.

The very hardy redleaf rose (R. rubrifolia) is an extremely valuable garden shrub that features red-tinted foliage and small, deep-red rose flowers, followed by bright red hips in the fall.

Harison's Yellow Rose (R. X harisonii) is a hardy old favorite. It produces masses of semi-double, fragrant, golden-yellow blooms on six- to eight foot arching canes, in late June and early July.

The best-known and most useful shrub roses are the hybrid rugosa roses (R. rugosa). These roses are adaptable to all parts of Canada. Agnes, an Agriculture Canada selection, is one of the most delightful, with its profusion of pale, amber-yellow flowers. Other desirable hybrids include Hansa, with fragrant, dark-red flowers; Pink Grootendorst, with fine shell-pink, carnation-like flowers; Wasagaming, producing cabbage-type, lavender-pink, double flowers; and Will Alderman, with rose-pink, fully-double flowers from June to September blooms.

Shrub roses require very little attention, except pruning, because most shrub roses are quite disease resistant. Each year, remove all branches from established plants to encourage new shoots at the base. Pruning the shrub back one quarter of its growth prevents snow damage, and encourages the new lateral shoots, which produce the main crop of blooms the following year.

Coleus

Each year we see wider use of shade-loving bedding plants, such as impatiens and begonias. Another popular bedding plant that can perform in sun or shade is Coleus.

Plant breeders have developed new varieties of Coleus to suit almost any garden situation. Some varieties, such as Scarlet Poncho, are specially designed for hanging baskets.

The Sabre series, introduced a couple of years ago, was a major breakthrough for Coleus. This year, breeders are introducing a new line of Coleus - Wizards - that is sure to be popular with the home gardener.

The new Wizard series includes seven separate colors ranging from pastels and goldens to deep velvet red, and a mixture of all of the colors.

The main advantage of the series is that the plants produce many bottom shoots (basal branches) naturally, so they do not require pinching or cutting back. Many of the older Coleus varieties tended to become long and leggy over the summer, but the Wizards remain compact throughout the growing season.

The adaptability of Coleus to full and semi-shade, and sun makes it an ideal accent or border plant for the garden. Coleus also grows well in window boxes, and patio pots.

Coleus should be treated with the same care as all bedding plants. Attention to soil preparation, watering and fertilizing ensures that you get the most from your plants.

One of the most important requirements is a loose, well-drained soil that does not allow water to sit on the surface.

Several applications of a water-soluble fertilizer, such as 20-20-20, are necessary over the growing season. Apply at a rate of 15 millilitres (1 tablespoon) per 4.5 litres (1 gallon) of water.

Coleus is the type of plant that you can easily transfer indoors in the fall. Although the foliage may not be as vivid, you can take cuttings and enjoy the colors all winter long.

Is your green thumb lonely? It will find companionship and a chance to exchange ideas with like minded people at the monthly meeting of the Minden and District Horticultural Society. The group meets the first Tuesday of each month. Contact the president, Elizabeth Carrell, or any member of the group for more information.

Businessmen hear amusement park story

Anyone who has travelled along Highway 400 north of Toronto has noticed a great deal of activity on the east side of the road near Maple. Earth moving machines crawl over a 328 acre site as a strange collection of buildings and steel frames grow up from the site.

The location is the home of the newest amusement park in North America, Canada's Wonderland. The $110 million project is being financed through a Canadian company with a large share of the backing coming from the Taft Broadcasting system in the United States.

Stephen Abrams, a public relations officer for the new amusement park was in Haliburton last Wednesday evening to explain what is taking place on the site and offer an idea of the impact on tourist trends the new attraction will have.

He told a group of about 30 Haliburton County business people at PineStone that the park expects to draw three million visitors during its first year of operation. He said that he expected close to 45% of those would come from outside Ontario.

Abrams was asked how the tourist industry in Haliburton could tap into the potential market being offered by the large number of visitors. He suggested that what are called

"town days" could be planned for the park. On Haliburton County Day, for example, the theme at the park could emphasize the Highlands.

The park spokesman did not offer any other suggestions on how this area might take advantage of the influx of visitors expected to be attracted to southern Ontario by the park.

The park will open next year with the season running from early May until Thanksgiving. Abrams told the audience that 3250 people will be employed on the site.

We were watching the ACTRA awards on T.V. last week and there was the Happy Gang with members taking part, also Gordon Sinclair, Farley Mowat and Fred Davis to mention a few. To us it seems the movie industry is really growing in our country.

Sincere sympathy goes to the family and friends of the late Mrs. Bert Blair (Violet) who died last week.

Now, just because a lot is wrong
Is really no excuse
For grumbling, groaning, looking glum,
And saying life's no use.
If only you would sometimes smile,
You might find life is well worthwhile.

We are pleased to report that Lydia Coulter, Bessie Godin and Mary Oliver are all home after a stay in hospital.

Weekend guests with the Harold Coulters were Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Francis and family of Oshawa and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Corby, Terry and Lisa of Ajax. They also called on other relatives including Mrs. Clara Francis (their mother).

The A.C.W. Meeting was at St. Paul's Anglican Parish Hall last week; Ila Cooper took the devotional, and then Sharon Barclay gave a fine demonstration of pottery making. A goodly sum was turned in from the Thrift Shop Sales and also articles were turned in for the Summer Bazaar and Tea to be at this Hall on July 19.

The community sends belated birthday wishes to Joe Warburton who celebrated his 72nd birthday on Friday.

Sunday guests with the Lyman Cox family were Mr. and Mrs. Ron Cox and family of Peterborough. We saw Lyman downtown, in their truck one day last week.

At the weekly Mini Card Party at the Parish Hall last Thursday afternoon winners were for cribbage: Joyce Hewitt and Verna McDonald; for euchre lone hands Harry MacMinn and Alice Clark and Alice Sedgwick.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Stamp and sons visited over the weekend with Glen Stamp of Oshawa.

Visiting with Bill and Susan Beers is her sister Anne McCreadie from Blantyre, Scotland who will be here 3 weeks.

The old rocking chair will be empty today,
For Grandma is no longer in it.

She's off in her car to her office or shop—
She buzzes around every minute.

You won't see her trundling off early to bed,
From her chair in a warm chimey nook,
Her typewriter's clicking far into the night.

Because Grandma is writing a book!

Our heroine never allows backward looks
To slow down her steady advancing.

There's no baby-sitting for her any more—

For grandma has taken up dancing;

She isn't content with her thoughts of old times,

With meagre and second-hand knowledge,

So don't bring your mending for Grandma to do

For Grandma has gone back to college!

Recent guests with Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Kernohan were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Graham and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barkwell all of Huntsville, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Kernohan of Oshawa and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sisson of Lindsay.

The Paul Warburtons visited their parents over the weekend and also they and the Milt Sears enjoyed an afternoon with Mrs. Harold Sears of Dorset and also with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lovegrove. Mary and Angela of Stoney Creek who were at Dorset for the weekend.

Mrs. John Hewitt is home after a week's visit with the Frank Addison of Toronto.

More residents are home from the South, as Dr. Jamieson, Mrs. O. Miles and Miss S. Howard are in town.

The Kinnette Club are celebrating their 20th Anniversary with a dinner at the Recreation Centre on May 3rd, but you need an advance ticket and all Kinnettes have these for sale.

Della Griffin was away visiting with her family in Toronto last week.

The Thrift Shop at St. Paul's Parish Hall (upstairs) will be open from 2-4 on Friday, April 25, and there are several rooms displaying the good used clothing.

April Showers were surely here last week, with rain nearly every day, but guess we need the moisture, just think how much that would have been in snow. Roads are a bit rough, so drive carefully. Cheerio until next time.

College grant announced

The Ministry of Education has announced that Sir Sandford Fleming College will receive a total operating grant of $8,756,368 for the 1980-81 year.

The grant represents a 7.9 per cent funding increase over last year and gives Sir Sandford an average grant per allocation unit (the Ministry's weighted funding measurement which encompasses full and part-time enrolments in credit programs) of $3,106 — $396 per unit less than the provincial average of $3,502 per unit.

In terms of funding, Sir Sandford ranks fifteenth among 22 community colleges in Ontario.

While the youngsters discovered the new and exciting world of kindergarten their mothers busied themselves with the task of enrolling the four and five year olds for the new school term. Kindergarten teacher Bonnie Fitzgerald, left, discusses the program with one mother.

Endangered species featured on new issue

Two new 17-cent commemorative stamps will be issued by the Canadian Post Office at a special ceremony to be held on May 6. The stamps are devoted to two endangered wildlife species, the Atlantic whitefish of Nova Scotia and the greater prairie chicken from western Canada.

"Most Canadians now realize that we live on a fragile planet. We share the air, the water and the land with our fellow human beings and with other living things. If we treat our environment with caution, ours will be a better world to live in. Canada's Post endangered species postage stamps will help to spread this message of caution and concern," said a Canada Post spokesman, in making the announcement.

Both stamps are being issued in the 17c letter rate denomination to give national exposure to these endangered domestic species. Canada Post had previously announced that the greater prairie chicken would bear a 35c denomination.

Science knows comparatively little about the Atlantic whitefish, except that the only Nova Scotia. The fish belongs to the salmon family. Adults range from 150 to 400 mm in length.

The stamp shows the Atlantic whitefish in its freshwater habitat. The illustration is by Michael Dumas, a young Ontario artist well known for his wildlife paintings.

be found today is in southern

It was not such a long time ago that the greater prairie chicken was plentiful, and found feeding off the large grassy areas in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba mostly. As more and more of the prairies were plowed, food became scarce. Hunters had been slaughtering the birds indiscriminately by the thousands. Its population began to decrease. Today the greater prairie chicken is almost extinct.

The illustration for the stamp was done by Robert Bateman, one of Canada's foremost wildlife artists. The stamp shows two male chickens in the dry grass of an early morning, in characteristic courtship display before a hen in the background.

We were pleased to welcome Mrs. Pritty and Doris Vaughn to our fun and fitness program on Monday morning.

Reverend and Mrs. Merv Kurtz held service in the chapel on Tuesday. They sang two beautiful inspirational hymns, which our residents enjoyed very much.

During the afternoon, several residents enjoyed two very interesting films. "Boating Safety and Security" demonstrated proper safety techniques on the water, a timely film, since summer is just around the corner.

"New Zealand - My Way" provided an interesting look at New Zealand. The film showed some great sheep herds. The wool from the sheep is the main industry in this country. The film also showed the erupting of a volcano. Steam caught from geo-thermal sources is used to make electricity in New Zealand. The scenery in this film was beautiful.

Thursday afternoon, the ladies of the Allsaw Mission brought a lovely assortment of sandwiches and goodies for the tea party. The residents enjoyed visiting with the ladies, and chatting with little Dionna Warburton who had some very interesting things to say.

Friday afternoon, we enjoyed the toe-tapping piano music of Ray Jenkins. Mr. Jenkins played some old familiar tunes that all our residents remembered and they told me they enjoyed every minute of his playing.

We are pleased to welcome Mr. Morley Sipe to our home. We sincerely hope that Morley will enjoy his stay with us.

Ladies Aux. select officers

Dagmar Simpson has been elected president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 441, Kinmount.

The election was held April 9 at the Legion Branch. Officiating during the selection process were Zone Commander Phyllis Montemiglio and Auxiliary members Elva MacPherson and Jean Dayman of the Lindsay Branch.

Other members of the new executive include: Lill Platt, past president; first vice president Ruth Menard; second vice president Lila Shaw; Sergeant at Arms, Violet Schroter; treasurer Mary Snoddon; secretary Marie Rasmussens; and executive members Joyce Brown, Gertie McKay, Violet Cook and Margaret

Our recent weather has been typical April weather - showers and more showers with the odd sprinkle of snow. On Sunday, we picked pussy-willows which is a sure sign that there is better weather ahead for us.

Another spring event - a Spring Fashion Show will be held on April 25th at 8 p.m. at the C.E. Building of Zion United Church here in Carnarvon. The show is free and refreshments will be served. Mark the date on your calendar and come out and see the new spring fashions and the attractive models.

Did you realize that 90 per cent of Red Cross work is done by volunteers? Can you imagine the cost if that work had to be paid for? Another good reason to support the Minden Red Cross!

We are to have an attractive new building in beautiful downtown Carnarvon. The site of the former Bargain Barn is being renovated by Carnarvon Lumber and I hear the new business will be open in May.

According to an article in last week's paper, we are to have a "Board of Trade" for the Metropolitan area of Carnarvon. What we need now is a bank and a drug-store and we could be self sufficient! I've heard of a couple of new businesses to be opened in Carnarvon in the near future.

From the United Church Bulletin of April 13th - "Appreciation is like an insurance policy, you have to keep renewing it".

Roy and Shirley Collis were pleasantly surprised when they arrived at the Community Centre in Minden last Saturday evening. Their April is Cancer month and canvassers will be calling at your door soon for donations to help with research to find a cure for this dread disease which is taking the lives of so many of our friends and relatives. Be generous and help stamp out this disease.

My congratulations to Mary Barker of Monmouth council for her donation to the library of a raise in salary which she felt was not necessary. Too bad more of our politicians didn't believe in economic restraint as much as Mary does.

Dorothy and Dick Kinsman flew to Houston Texas last week for a few days. They report having had a good trip.
